The Ghera liquor case brought at Tucson to test the validity of the constitutional amendment relative to prohibition in the state of Arizona, has been decided in the supreme court of the state adversely to Ghera, the court holding that the act is self-acting.

That it is illegal to "lend a drink" in Arizona, since the prohibition amendment forbids one to "dispose" of liquor is the opinion of County Attorney George O. Hilzinger. The supreme court of Mississippi has ruled that it is not against the law of that state to lend a drink of whiskey with the understanding that a corresponding quantity is to be returned.—Douglas International.

Billie Doyle and George Dry visited the Fink place near Walnut Grove last week and returned with some of the largest and finest grape fruit and oranges ever seen in the district. The fruit raised at the Fink place is much larger than any that has been brought in to Ray this winter, and the writer attests that the grape fruit was not only seedless and juicy but of the finest flavor he has ever tasted.—Copper Camp.

The testimonial accorded A. L. Paschall of San Simon by the university and the boards of supervisors of Cochise and Santa Cruz counties, with reference to his duties as farm advisor, is entirely just and merited. Mr. Paschall being not only thoroughly competent but in every way worthy. It is also a tribute to San Simon and the valley that there should be found here a farmer who is wanted on the faculty of the Arizona Experiment Station.—The Artesian Belt.

One of the big cattle deals of the entire season was made Tuesday when A. W. Atkinson of Tucson sold his entire herd of 2509 head, near Calabasas, for $32.50 per head to W. Parker of Cutter, N. M. Mr. Atkinson will make delivery from Calabasas on May 15. The country around Cutter is a great cattle section and lies around the Rio Grande. It is one of the richest cattle countries in the state of New Mexico, as the Los Caballos mountains furnish snow and the river is always available for water.—Tucson Star.

J. A. and Harry Tice were in from their Higley ranches this morning on business, and report everything prosperous at Higley, says a recent issue of the Mesa Tribune. Harry is busy getting his new orchard in condition for the production of fruit in the future. He is putting in ten acres of citrus trees, oranges and pomeloes, and ten acres in olives, apricots and peaches. To economize the ground he has adopted the plan of placing the apricot trees between the olives. The latter are planted forty feet apart and the apricots placed midway between. Mr. Tice's citrus trees are nursery stock grown by himself. He has ten thousand seedlings, a portion of which are already budded.

The town council is to be congratulated in finally making arrangements to get a water, power and lighting plant for Casa Grande. Friday evening E. K. Brackett of Boston conferred with the council in regards to giving him the franchise, and arrangements were made to have his proposition put in shape and placed before the people of Casa Grande to vote on. Mr. Brackett agrees to start work on the plant in six months and to complete the construction in eighteen months if the people agree to give him the franchise. It is expected that there will be at least fifty thousand dollars spent in the construction of the plant, and that a large percentage of this amount will be expended for labor, which will give work to many of the working men of Casa Grande.—Bulletin.

FOR GOOD ROADS.

"A hundred and fifty thousand automobiles will cross the United States this year, 50,000 of them should cross Arizona and more than $3,000,000 will be spent in this state by these auto tourists," said I. J. Kirker, representative of the National Good Roads Association, who is in Arizona for the purpose of organizing a state branch at a luncheon at Rossi's this noon which was attended by business men, says the Tucson Citizen.

J. E. Owen presided. He introduced Mr. Parker of the Phoenix chamber of commerce and the Arizona Good Roads Association. Mr. Parker said that the state is in need of a good roads organization in which every town in the state will be interested and represented. He outlined the policy. He suggested that a folder showing roads, hotels and other accommodations be issued and so distributed over the country that it would be a benefit to tourists. Mr. Parker took particular pains to deny the report that Phoenix is working against the Borderland route in favor of another route. He said that Phoenix is for the Borderland.

DESERVING PROMOTIONS.

Recognition of the efficient services rendered to the government by Frederick Simplic, American consul at Nogales, has resulted in his promotion to the sixth grade of the consular service with a corresponding increase in salary of almost a third, according to news received by one of his friends residing in Tucson.

Marion Letcher, American consul at Chihuahua City, is also in receipt of a similar appointment to the sixth grade.

The promotions are made possible by a new law passed January 1, permitting the president to nominate consuls to grades, instead of particular posts, thus permitting American representatives, who have distinguished themselves in the government service to be rewarded without the removal of other consuls or having to await a vacancy caused by death or resignation.

The many friends of Consul Simplic along the border and in Sonora will be extremely gratified that the ability of their representative in northern Mexico has been recognized by the administration in advancing his grade and while realizing that it will ultimately result in his transfer to one of the more important consular positions of the government, believe that the promotion is well merited.—Star.

Clifton Is Ready For Resumption.

A Clifton, Ariz., dispatch says:—Pursuant to instructions issued from the general offices of The Shannon Copper Company at Boston, General Manager J. W. Bennie is making preparations at the mines and reduction plant to resume operations at full capacity.

Work at the mines at Metcalf was resumed this week and it is the expectation that the smelter will be blown in on or about the 20th inst. Old employees of the company, who have remained here, are going back to work daily and others who have been absent are returning to resume their old positions.

The future prospect of the copper industry is quite encouraging as the metal has shown a steady increase for the past few weeks and it is the general opinion among the copper producers that copper will be selling above fifteen cents at the close of February.

The A. C. Co. is gradually increasing its production and at Morenci the Detroit Copper Mining Co., is again working full time in all departments. With a continued strong copper market the Clifton-Morenci district will soon witness a speedy return to normal conditions with increased prosperity for all concerned.

FETERITA ADVANTAGES.

Experience of a Dry Farmer With the New Sorghum.

Patrick Byrnes, of Pueblo, Colorado, has had extensive experience as a dry-farmer. He writes of feterita, a sorghum crop rapidly gaining favor in the sub-humid regions of this country, as follows:

"The sorghum known as feterita is bound to become popular. It partakes of the best qualities of both milo and kafir; the full, rounded bunchy heads resembling those of milo and the leafy, soft stalks being not unlike those of kafir. So it has the merits of those two valuable forage plants combined.

"The writer planted a five acre field to feterita last season on his ranch in Pueblo county, Colorado, and found that it is as drought-resistant as any of the other sorghums and that horses, cattle and hogs relish it and thrive on it. Five pounds of seed per acre was the amount planted. It was put in with a corn planter and one or two seeds were planted every 8 to 10 inches apart. It was given the same cultivation that other crops received.

"It was harvested with a corn cutter and put in shock, hauled in and most of it fed in bundles although 30 bushels of seed were threshed from choice heads selected in the shock. And next season the size of the field will be considerably enlarged.

"True to the nature of the sorghum family, the roots are deep feeders and reach down to soil that would not be utilized by corn or small grain. This is one of its advantages for it will thus thrive on old ground."

The Value of Publicity to Mining.

All business depends upon publicity for its greatest success. This applies to everything from running a peanut stand to marketing a mine, and operating it, too, for that matter. Publicity may mean advertising in the newspapers or otherwise; the means differs with different kinds of business, but the one object is sought—to get the attention of the interested public.

No doubt one of the reasons that mining has not been prospering as well as it might have in the last few years is that insufficient publicity has been granted to the industry. This does not apply to the large well established mining operations so much as to the smaller. The mines that have become successful producers and dividend payers do not need publicity to the extent that the smaller undeveloped properties do, yet publicity for the big fellows helps their smaller neighbors. The success of a district is bound up with the success of all the mines in it, large or small. The success of the mines strongly affects the prosperity of all other business activities of the district. It behooves all, then, to boost the basic industry—mining.

The business men of all classes in mining communities can best benefit their own business by organizing and boosting mining. This truth has been recognized in some mining sections and commercial clubs have sprung up with are giving considerable attention to promoting the mining activity of the districts around them by giving publicity to the mines and encouraging the investment of money in mines and prospects. There is need for greater extension of this kind of publicity aided by local and other papers. Help the struggling mines and prospects. They are the ones that need your help—your enthusiastic moral support.—Mining & Engineering World.

Rainbow trout, hatched and raised in Yavapai county will probably be on the bill of fare in a number of the hotels in the state by the middle of August. This announcement has been made following the first shipment of 200,000 eggs and 50,000 fry from Utah to the new hatchery of the Crystal Spring Trout company at Skull valley.—Prospector.
